and wages in the cost of one tonne of production will also reduce," the executive said. In contrast, salaries account for about 22% of a mine contractor's cost. While a private mine contractor pays workmen Rs 15,000-25,000 a month, Coal India gives at least Rs 80,000 along with family health expenses, education, housing and other benefits.

This year, Coal India has ordered higher capacity equipment worth Rs 6,000 crore and plans to order another Rs 5,000 crore. It is acquiring higher capacity dumpers, shovels, dozers and draglines along with spares for the next 10 years.

It aims to produce 750 million tonnes in 2020-21, and 1 billion tonnes by 2023-24, two years earlier than the revised target.
